Court leader claims harassment

By NICK D'ORAZIO, JR.
University Staff Writer
BYU will have its judiciary troubles. Former ASBYU Judge George Nagle accused ASBYU court members of harassing Judge Jack Haycock, the senior judge, who had resigned with Haycock and two judges last Thursday, it supported in its decision. "I don't know of any court action to get Jack out of there by any of the judges," Nagle said, "as Bob Beal put the motion in Jack's (Haycock) box. Justice Judd was standing there and they were both laughing, and Justice Judd said 'he'll get him.' I heard that, so it's pretty hard to say the supreme court didn't know what was going on. ... Nagle said, "I think that this thing they had been planning for quite awhile, and they were looking for a good place for Jack (Haycock) to fall. They didn't find a good one so they had to take what they could get."

Nagle said that he and Haycock took issue with one particular paragraph in Beal's motion: "That a permanent injunction be issued against the defendant (Haycock) ... preventing him from disseminating official materials without prior review and approval by ... the Supreme Court."

Nagle said "we looked at it and decided this was the final straw. We'd had enough - we weren't going to play their games, we weren't going to be their puppets. So we resigned."

Dan Portwood, head defender in the student defenders office, said that he believes people in the supreme court were trying to cost Haycock. Supreme Court Justice Lee Passy had come to him early last January and the downward the next month that Judge Jack Haycock.

Nagle said that Passy had him in his colleagues thought the defender's office should file a motion to have the common court senior judge "suspended" for a few days he kept coming back to work, and kept suggesting we should try to stop the common court judge from coming back to work.

Police officer Kim Winton also said the feels certain police had planned in advance to force Haycock out, she said when she went to find out whether the judges had resigned or not on Thursday afternoon, she overheard Beal and Passy already talking about possible replacements.

Nagle said that three of the supreme court justices, Judd, Passy, and John Chaffin, have already submitted their resignations to the court because they have shown prejudicial opinions about those involved.

Custodian's actions prevent explosion

By DOUG DRAPER
University Staff Writer

Some school custodians do more than sweep floors and clean bathrooms. A custodian at Orem's Iron Elementary School acted quickly Tuesday morning in extinguishing a boiler room fire and saving lives.

Students became the hero of students and staff members at a school located at 525 N. 400 East. He had halted his custodial duties to extinguish a fire from a natural gas

"To shut off the gas supply, I had to knock around the flames shooting out of the place where the fire started," Madson said. "It was next to the valve, but I was able to reach it without getting burned."

The Orem City Fire Department responded to help control the blaze, but Madson had it stopped before they arrived. Lt. John VanOrman immediately thanked Madson for his quick actions, and said "The janitor needs to be congratulated. He was the hero of the day. He kept his cool, didn't panic and saved the school."

The fire was due to a malfunction of the diaphragm of the gas valve in the boiler. The fire caused no significant damage and only scorched the roof of the boiler. VanOrman said the school is scheduled to reopen Wednesday if adequate repairs are completed. Students and teachers were sent home because of the lack of heat in the building, said Principal Jay Stargrett.

Madson, an Orem resident, was hired as the custodian three weeks ago.

Custodian Gary Madson demonstrates how he halted the gas supply during a boiler room fire. His actions averted a possible explosion at Orem's Iron Elementary School. Madson then extinguished the fire which occurred because of a leak in the gas line.

Under the U.N. Charter, an aggrieved nation is entitled to take defensive military action and seek security council sanctions against any nation that economic ties or air, sea or land communications.

It was understood that the statement was intended as a stern warning to Iran's revolutionary leaders that the United States is no longer ruling out the right of self-defense.

At the Pentagon, officials declined comment on the White House statement. They said, however, that no orders had been issued to alert or move any military units.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Gen. David C. Jones, head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, took part in the White House meeting with the president.

Until Tuesday's statement, administration officials took care to rule out the slightest hint of military action in connection with the Nov. 4 seizure of the embassy and 62 American hostages.

Officials had said they feared any discussion of such action could endanger the lives of the hostages. On Tuesday, 40 persons still were being held behind armed guard at the embassy.

The White House statement followed a declaration by Iran's religious ruler, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, that the 8 Americans would be held for trial as spies unless the United States returned the 62 hostages to Iran.

Earlier, the State Department reiterated its contention that any trial of the U.S. diplomats would be a "violation" of international principles.

"If there is anything more unacceptable than the taking of hostages it would be this (a trial)," said Hodel. Carter, the State Department spokesman, said the U.S. is in a "unique" situation of diplomatic relations and diplomatic protection.

"If there is anything more unacceptable than the taking of hostages it would be this (a trial)," said Hodel. Carter, the State Department spokesman, said the U.S. is in a "unique" situation of diplomatic relations and diplomatic protection.

U.S. diplomats attempted unsuccessfully in New York to convince other U.N. Security Council members to condemn a possible spy trial for the hostages. Council President Sergio Marchesi of Venezuela said only one unidentified member of the 15-member council supported the U.S. request.

Former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young told State Department officials in Washington he planned to go to Tehran to try to persuade Iranian officials. U.S. officials said he would be acting on his own.

Wednesday's march was expected to be the largest anti-American protest since militants occupied the embassy in Tehran.

The Ruling Revolutionary Council in Tehran has vowed to "completely" commemorate the bicentennial of the Islamic revolution by the Moslem prophet Muhammad from Medina to Mecca in what is now Saudi Arabia. The day, which concludes the holy month of Moharram, is one of the holiest in the Moslem year and this year marks the beginning of the 15th Islamic century.

The 13 were undergoing physical and psychological tests and being kept away from reporters.

Nation's woes blamed on Carter

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The nation's Republican governors said Tuesday that weak leadership by the Democrats in power has subjected the country to "economic disaster and international embarrassment."

The former secretaries of state Henry Kissinger told the governors that weak leadership encouraged the kind of crisis that erupted in Iran with the seizure of the U.S. Embassy two weeks ago.

At the close of their annual convention, the GOP governors adopted a resolution charging that President Carter and the Democratic Congress had led the "people of America astray from crippling inflation and unemployment, and from a national defense because of our overdependence on imported oil."

"The national administration and the Congress have failed to respond to the nation's energy crisis," the governors said.

Congressman Thompson of Illinois said the failure of the Carter administration and Congress to agree on an energy program was "a national disgrace," considering inflation and the threat to national defense highlighted by the Iran crisis.

"It's a blame equally shared by the President and Congress who have allowed the narrow parochial considerations to get in the way of getting the American people together and united on a policy that could help free us from the grip of the 'energy crisis,'" Thompson said.

"The while terrible in itself, it is symbolically of the posture in which our whole country now finds itself," he added.

Kissinger told the governors that the decade of the 1980s "will be a period of great crisis requiring strong leadership."

"If we do not furnish this, then the sort of crisis that we have been living through for the past few weeks will become more and more frequent, occur more and more unpredictably and will be less and less in our control," Kissinger said.

The bad news, however, is that the smaller, lighter can develop less breakaway traction than standard size cars and have notable difficulty getting back into motion once again.

In view of continuing concerns about energy conservation and pollution, it is not surprising that good vehicle maintenance are critical to getting the most out of the car, as economically as possible and without mechanical failures, Nielsen said.

Precautions required for safe winter travel

By KEN BUSH
University Staff Writer

High fuel costs, slick roads and poor pre-winter vehicle tune-ups account for many area winter driving problems, Provo Police Chief Wes Nielsen said.

"The upcoming Thanksgiving holiday and thereafter will require that motorists be rested and alert as well as keeping tabs on vehicle maintenance and trip planning," Nielsen said.

When making long trips, it is important to plan the travel route in advance, keeping in mind the availability of fuel and hours of service at gas stations, Nielsen said.

He further cautioned against giving little attention to weather conditions, especially in the Provo area.

"Accident warning causes as many as 30 to 40 accidents during a routine winter day," Nielsen said. He then claimed that many of the students living here do not have winter driving experience.

"Hills, as well as the often-traveled arterial, are particularly dangerous on a slick winter day," Nielsen said.

er, in turn, is likely to require a shorter distance than a standard car, according to committee findings," Nielsen said.

"In view of the fact, however, is that the smaller, lighter can develop less breakaway traction than standard size cars and have notable difficulty getting back into motion once again."

In view of continuing concerns about energy conservation and pollution, it is not surprising that good vehicle maintenance are critical to getting the most out of the car, as economically as possible and without mechanical failures, Nielsen said.

"A tune-up should include inspection of the engine, oil level, tire pressure, points, plugs and emission control devices on late model cars. This will reduce fuel consumption and assure dependable starting at low temperatures and fewer stalls in traffic," he added.

Nielsen cautioned that the heater, defroster system, windshield wipers, lights, brakes, tires and emergency equipment should meet the requirements developed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"Safe and economical winter driving requires a little extra time, a little slower speed, a little extra care and a lot more common sense," Nielsen said.

Shiites seize Islamic shrine

TUNIS, Tunisia — More than 100 armed men on Tuesday seized the Kaaba shrine, the holiest shrine in the Islamic world, sources at the Arab summit conference here said.

The sources said the raiders were members of Saudi Arabia's minority Shiite sect, of which Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is a spiritual leader.

The Saudi delegation here, led by Crown Prince Fahd, was not able to confirm the report. But Fahd was preparing to leave for home in what appeared to be a emergency in his country, the world's largest oil exporter and the birthplace of the Islamic faith.

In Egypt, Cairo's Al Akhbar newspaper said a "a large number of Khomeini's bands" in Saudi Arabia staged several anti-government demonstrations during the pilgrimage season in the city of Mecca last month and speculated the attackers might be Iranian.

The Saudi defense minister flew from the coastal city of Riyadh to Mecca to take personal charge of the security forces there, sources in Tunisia said.

Blunt sorry he was Russian spy

LONDON — Anthony Blunt came in from the cold Tuesday and told reporters he bitterly regrets having used for the Russians but added "I haven't betrayed my conscience."

Interviewed by a handful of selected reporters, the 72-year-old former art adviser to Queen Elizabeth II said he became a Soviet agent in 1950 because he "believed it was the right thing to do in the cause of anti-fascism."

"Now I realize bitterly that this was totally wrong," said Blunt, interviewed at his lawyer's office in his last public appearance since his spy role was exposed publicly last Thursday in Parliament by Conservative Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

HEW office not worth its salt

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A reporter who spent three months working in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's regional office said the office had no real work to do because employees had nothing to do.

Rather Buser, in a copyeditor's in the Kansas City Times, reports that other secretaries spent hours reading books and newspapers for lack of anything to do. At other times they were swapped not only with the staff of bureaucratic paper work, but also with the national news correspondence for their superiors.

There were training sessions lasting from three hours to entire days leaving to fill out government forms, including an eight-hour training session learning how to fill out forms for training sessions.

An HEW spokesman said the articles were filled with "distortions and innuendoes" and accused the Times of "unethical conduct" in placing Mr. Bauer in the job.

The Kansas City office includes 6000 employees. Nationally HEW has a $200 billion annual budget — a tab of nearly $1,000 for every American.

Kennedy hires Big Oil defender

NEW YORK — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, one of the oil industry's harshest critics, has tapped one of big oil's most outspoken defenders to put together the advertising for the Massachusetts Democrat's presidential campaign.

Herbert Schmetz will take a six-week leave of absence from his job as vice president and director of Mobil Corp. to join the Kennedy campaign next week on a volunteer basis.

Schmetz was not available for comment Tuesday, but he was quoted as saying he did not feel his role in the Kennedy campaign would be a conflict of interest. He will not be involved in the formation of energy policy for the campaign, just the assembly of an advertising campaign, Kennedy aides said.

But the move drew a shocked reaction from many oilmen. Schmetz directed Mobil's multimillion-dollar ad campaign defending oil industry practices and attacking government attempts to control the industry. He has also been a frequent participant in television debates on the oil industry and is one of the industry's most recognizable spokesmen.

U.N. prepares refugee camp

KHAO I Dang, Thailand — Relief workers said to prepare a vast new refugee camp Tuesday but leaders of the estimated 400,000 Cambodians camped inside Cambodia at the Thai border said must would result to be rejected.

Planners estimated about 200,000 of the organized refugees would enter the camp starting Wednesday, but at last-minute visit to the site, Cambodian refugee leaders said more than 30,000 of the sick and aged would come.

The Cambodians — including anti-communist "free Khmer" fighters and their supporters — are now camped in a huge city of huts along the border, endangered by troops from Vietnam who have invaded Dec. 25, 1978 and ran out the Chinese-supported regime of Cambodia Premier Pol Pot.

Thailand decided last week to move the camp here, to a safer place, 4 miles inside Thailand and 130 miles east of Bangkok.

But free Khmer leader Van Saren said "I will not surrender," as he stood amid bulldozers raising clouds of dust at the new camp site. "Our people move here will be like the retreat. We will stay and fight."

Garn's wife topic of senate debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate hearing room became the scene of an emotional confrontation Tuesday when consumer advocate Ralph Nader suggested that the dead-end Jake Garn's wife was caused by faulty automobile design.

With other members of the Senate Banking Committee sitting by in stunned silence, Garn, R-Utah, twice asked Nader, "What kind of a human being are you?"

Nader, accusing Garn of "over-emoting," replied that he was "the kind of human being who would like to see lives saved on the highways."

Garn's first wife, Hazel, to whom he had been married for 19 years, was killed Aug. 17, 1978, when the car she was driving overturned near Sunol, Neb.

The exchange between Garn and Nader occurred during a committee hearing on proposed government loan guarantees for the financially ailing Chrysler Corp.

Man and save.

If you're moving within the same telephone exchange or local area, you can reduce installation costs by taking all your desk-top telephones with you when you go. It's a simple matter of unplugging them, or cutting the cord. Since we won't have to go out to get these phones, we pass a $5 savings on to you.

And there's still another good way to hold down costs if your home has modular telephone jacks—just pick up the phones you need at one of our Phone Center Stores. Then you'll save $3.25 on the installation of your first phone and $1 on each additional phone you take home and plug in. It's well worth looking into.

Y takes undefeated mark against San Diego State

By JEFF FARLEY
Universe Sports Writer

BYU takes its undefeated record on the road Saturday for a nationally televised game with the San Diego State Aztecs for the WAC championship and a berth in the Holiday Bowl.

A crowd of 50,000 is expected to watch the final regular season game, which will feature two of the WAC's top offensive players, BYU's Marc Wilson and SDSU's Tony Allen. The quarterback leads the nation in total offense, averaging 331.9 yards per game. Allen is the top runner in the league, and has gone over the 1,000-yard mark with one game left on the regular schedule.

Coach LaVell Edwards knows his team cannot afford to lose just the Aztecs in the Holiday Bowl, since the Cougars face a team which has lost only twice at home in the last 25 games.

If the Aztecs (8-2) defeat BYU (10-0) Saturday, they will share the WAC crown and will represent the WAC in the second annual Holiday Bowl against Indiana Dec. 21.

Although the Cougars are favored in the contest, SDSU has a strong team with a high powered offense of its own, averaging more than 30 points a game.

United Waterbed Inc. your discount waterbed dealer. 225-2745. 166 1/2 S. State Street.

than 30 points in the last three games. BYU has dipped in scoring over the same stretch to a little more than 20 points per game, although the Cougars still lead the nation in scoring (38.1).

BYU also continues to lead the nation in passing, total offense, and kickoff returns. The Cougars are 12th in defensive scoring, and seventh in punting.

Physically, the Cougars are strong with the exception of starting defensive tackle Jim Jaramilo, who will miss the game. Jaramilo, a 6-4, 287-pound junior, injured a knee in the Utah game, but may be back for any post-season action of the Cougars.

Senior Doug Stromberg will start at the right tackle slot in the front four.

Coach Edwards said, "We know we are facing a very, very good team. But they are a team we are ready to play. Their line attack makes them real tough to plan for."

"People ask me, 'Is this BYU's best team?' I can only answer, ask me Saturday night."
